AN OVATION TO THE GEORGIAN Over a Hundred Thousand Demo

TO THE SPEECHES IN THE HALL

and at Overflow Stands on Fourteenth Street and in Union Square. Other Political News.

New York, November 3.-The democratic organization known as the Tammany Society of New York gave a grand ifestation of its political activity tonight, when it stood sponsor for the biggest demonstration of the campaign. The rally occurred in and around Tammany hall and was successful beyond the most sanguine expectations. It was the second and last day's demonstrations of the Tammanyites. The first was successful enough for any political organization. The big hall was crowded to the doors, and an overflow meeting on Fourteenth street required eight stands of speakers to attend to the crowd; but Tammany's chief was not satisfied. He wanted something better and tonight's unique demonstration

Tammany's wonderful organizing abilities were called into play. Enough volunteer speakers were called for to talk to an army, and more than enough re-big attractions, like Governor Russell, Senator Carlisle, Senator Gorman and W. H. J. Ham, the Georgia storyteller, to talk inside the hall, and a dozen stands were erected from Third avenue up Fourteenth street and across Union square to Fifth avenue, for which there were plen-ty good and well-known speakers. Then, to insure attendance, if necessary, a committee of thirty ordered every other democratic meeting in New York scheduled for tonight, to be postponed. Notice was sent to every member of the rganization to be on hand and bring as many with him as possible. The result was a mammoth celebration in support of Cleveland and Stevenson, such as to be the chief political orranization of the nineteenth century.

The meeting was announced to begin at 8 o'clock, but two hours before that time Fourteenth street from Third avenue to Broadway was one mass of pushing and howling humanity. The crowd was good natured and orderly, that is, if usiasm and noise can be exempted from the term, for the cheering for various candidates of the party and singing ampaign songs were continuous. The doors of Tammany hall were opened at 7 o'clock and then a mad rush, abling nothing so much as the storming of a fortress, ensued. Then in five es the place was crowded to its utmost capacity, and those who had managed to gain access to the hall turned at-tention to find advantageous places. At various outdoor stands, music, sizzling rockets and the immense crowd formed Tamny's chieftain stood in the foreground of the fair landscape. At his feet crouchwhich peered from a medallion having either side two medallions were painted ly, as if trying to reach the two eagles perched upon the rocks above, holding in their claws the national shield and gorical painting were huge oil paintings of the Tammany nominees for mayor and county clerk, Thomas F. Gilroy and Henry D. Purroy.

Precisely at 8 o'clock Senator Roesch led the platform delegation and a great wave of cheering surged out into the street. With Senator Roesch were most of the vice presidents and secretaries of order. Without any remarks he introduced Hon. Joseph J. O'Donohue as chairgot a two-minutes' ovation and then made a brief speech of thanks and reviewed the issues of the campaign. Upon concluding he called upon the secretary to read a of the vice presidents.

A letter was then read from Senator Gorman, regretting his inability to attend The first speaker was Senator Eustis, of Louisiana. He spoke for half an hour. He was followed by Senator Carlisle in an able expression of the tariff and taxon question, and the great crowd hung At the conclusion of Senator Carlisle's speech the chairman rose and introduced "a distinguished citizen of Georgia—Ham." Rarely is is given to one man to control of the c to capture New York in thirty minutes, but that is what was done by Mr. Ham, politically speaking. The crowd surged and roared for a minute, as the Georgian stepped to the front, from the throng on the large platform, unbuttoned the top button of his coat and looked astonished. He waved his hand and tried to quiet the uproar, but the crowd would not have it, and continued to yell. When, finally, there came a hull, a fine-looking man in the halies' callers arose and cried out:

the ladies' gallery arose and cried out:
"Three cheers for Snollygoster Ham, from Georgia," and then the crowd gave them with a will, as the excited citizen led them by swinging his hat, and wound up with a final "tiger." Then the Georgian smiled and went on

Senator Eustis; they gave Senator Carlisle a grand ovation; but they went wild with Ham. His first sentence caught them; his first story broke them all to pieces; and from then on for three-quarters of an hour they were as clay in his hands. One eloquent passage would make the women rise in their seats and wave their handerchiefs and fans, while the men roared like a mighty sea, and in a minute a story would have them pounding the floor and yelling like pandemonium. At the conslusion of the speech, the great crowd yelled itself hoarse, while all the distinguished people on the great platform crowded around the speaker and nearly shook his arms off with congratulations. As they vied to give the first and heartiest congratualations, the band struck up "Dixie" and the house went wild. It was a great speech.

struck up "Dixie" and the house went wild. It was a great speech.

Mr. Ham speaks tomorrow night at another great mass meeting on Second avenue, in Senator Roesche's district, and leaves immediately thereafter on the midnight train for Richmond, where he speaks to the democracy of the Old Dominion on Saturday night. He has been compelled to decline a multitude of invitations to make other speeches in this state.

NOTHING BUT BLUFFS

Are the Republican Offers of Bets-The Inside from Headquarters. New York, November 3.—(Special.)— There is no change in the situation worth reporting. The republicans feel confident and so do our fellows. I think we will lick them, but it's not going to be an Austerlitz.

There are people who base an opinion on the opinions of sporting men. For the itemation of this class I wish to say that a little more stimulus was given to betting today, but still no very big wagers were made. A confident Cleveland man bet a Baltimore man $1,000 to $800 that the democrats would carry New York state. The Baltimore sport put up a little more than most republicans have had the confidence to bet against Cleveland on the state result, for the ruling odds have been $1,000 to $700 on this point. There is a great deal emocratic money ready at these figures, but no takers.

The most remarkable feature of the present campaign is the almost total lack of small bets among the masses of people. What are called friendly bets are scarce. This is accounted for by the circumstance that there is less enthusiasm over the election in a spectacular way than heretofore. Parades and especially demonstrative torchlight parades are prolific of bets as a rule, according to old campaigners, and there have been none to speak of this year.

Inside Facts on the Situation.

the general result every day for two weeks without takers, besides countless offers of two to one on New York. The democrats caught on today. This morning Comptroller Myers, of New York, was offered by a prominent republican—Mr. Comyns—$25,000 on Harrison. Myers promptly responded, producing five certified checks for $5,000 each. when Comyns said he was only joking. This evening at the Hoffman house, a man from Philadelphia entered the lobby and offered $45,000 to $50,000 on the general result in favor of Harrison. Offers were at once made to divide the bet into separate ones of $5,000 even, but he refused. "Thirty minutes later Edward Murphy, he refused.

"Thirty minutes later Edward Murphy, chairman of the New York democratic state committee, appeared, hunting for the Philadelphian, and offering to take him without odds for $50,000 on Cleveland. The Philadelphian had disappeared and Mr. Murphy publicly registered the offer for takers, to stand till election day."

MAT QUAY IN WASHINGTON.

He Says His Offer to Bet Was an Election Bluff. Washington, November 3.—(Special.)— Senator Quay slipped into town last night so quietly and kept so close during the day

Senator Quay slipped into town last night so quietly and kept so close during the day that no one discovered he was here until tonight. He seems to have been exhausted by the hard and uncongenial task of saving Harrison from defeat, transferred to him by Chairman Carter, in New York.

He was so exhausted that he excused himself from seeing the newspaper men who called to see him this evening. Still he found energy enough to go down to Chamberlain's, where he met, during the evening, several of his old cronies, who naturally plied him with questions as to the probable outcome of the election.

The story goes here tonight that one of the senator's friends told him he nad a big wad of money which he was anxious to double by betting it on the election, and besought Quay to give him a dead traight tip. The senator told his friend the best thing he could do with his money was to keep it in his pocket; that he was not at all confident of Harrison's election, and that the whole outcome was in loubt.

When the senator was asked if it was not true then, as reported, that he was anxious to bet $10,000 on Harrison, Clay smiled one of his well-known smiles and said in a stage whisper that it was all an election bluff.

Mr. Lycurgus Dalton, postmaster of the house of representatives, and one of the best informed politicians in Indiana, telegraphed from Indianapolis to a friend in Washington today that he saw every indication of a good democratic plurality in that state on Tuesday next and that no republican money was going up these on Harrison carrying it.

Fall River, Mass., November 3.—Manufacturers at a meeting today voted to increase the wages of weavers to 21 cents per cut, and all other departments in proportion. This is practically an advance of about 7 per cent and restores wages to the standard of 1884. The vote was almost unanimous and was voluntary on the part of the manufacturers.

London, November 3.—A census taken by the institute of bankers in the United Kingdom shows a total of £4,548,775. Out of 4,589 banks only ninety two falled to report. The aggregate in excess of the average requirements is £1,222,545. The census is the most complete and most reliable over taken in the United Kingdom.

Aldrich's Opinion.

Following is the text of the opinion by Acting Attorney General Aldrich:

The attention of the department of justice has been called to certain alleged instructions to police and state officers in Alabama, Arkansas and New York, with reference to their conduct towards such deputy United States marshals as may be in attendance at polling places. Such instructions bring their authors and all persons attempting to carry them into effect within the provisions of sections 5,518 and 5,522 of the criminal statutes of the United States, which are as follows:

present campaign is the almost total lack of small bets among the masses of people square to were plenakers.
This is accounted for by the circumstance were plenakers.
Parades and especially demonstrative torchight parades are prolific of bets as a rule, according to old campaigners, and the better by the compact of the manner, and officer of the according to old campaigners, and the sum on in suppost the compact of the compact of the democrats and there is now no doubt about the state. Connecticut. The result has been freely offered by democrats or the strated from the state. Connecticut is not so craft the democrats will lose Connecticut. The republicans concede New Jersey, and the testing tonight at the Hoffman house is two to one in favor of Cleveland. Large amounts were staked at the Hoffman house tonight.

"The following was issued from the democratic national headquarters tonight:

"The frolt and bubble of the republicans in betting, exploited Saturday and lasted from years, and the swere made of $1,000 to $900 in favor of Cleveland. Large amounts were staked at the Hoffman house tonight.

"The frolt and bubble of the republicans in betting, exploited Saturday and lasted from the damonary were would be no proposition to meet duming a state of the criminal statutes of the United States, which are as follows:

"Section 5,518—in two or more persons in follows: "Section 5,518—in two or more persons in flow or from discharging any duties (liercof, or to induce by a fine of not less than $5,000, or by imprisoment, with or without any state or territory conspires, to person, the following any state or territory conspires, to prevent any state or territory conspires, to prove or from discharging any duties (liercof, or to in such fine and imprisonment, and shall pay the cost of prosecution."

In view of these profisions it is not thought that any person, or combination of persons, will seek in any way to interfere with the marshals in the discharge of their duties. Any such faterference will be vigorously prosecuted.

Marshals and their deputies are at such polling places as peace officers and not partisans, and their instructions allow no discrimination for or against any party. An honest ballot and a fair count was what the law was designated to provide and its constitutionality has been so strongly upheld and the paramount power of the federal government so clearly asserted by the supreme court, that it would be idle to discuss that question. The idea that the United States is not as much an object of the people's love and pririotism as any state is utterly mischlevous, although implied in the circulars referred to.

The peace officer of the United States who seeks to provent illegal voting no more invades the rights of American clitzens than does the peace officer of the state. The impression that the federal government is a foreigr power should be obliterated. The streament that section 2,021 is the only section authorizing the appointment of deputy marshals, and therefore that such appointments can be made only in cities of 20,000 inhabitants or upwards, is not the view of the law entertained by the attorney general or myself, nor has such a view been held or expressed by any attorney general since the enactment of the law so far as I can discover. The instructions given by Attornev General Taff in his circular letter of September 4, 1876, have been continuously acquired.

In this circular he said: "You will observe that the special deputies mentioned in section 2021 of the Revised Statutes, have peculiar duties assigned to them—duties which otherwise do not belong to deputy marshals and other deputies by section 2022, or other like status belong to all duly appointed deputies, whether they be general or be special, within th

AN OPINION AND A SENSATION,

How the Assistant Attorney General Construct Certain Sections of the Revised Statutes.

Washington, November 3.—Solicitor General Aldrich, acting attorney general, in a formal and sweeping opinion just rendered as to the employment of United States marshals and supervisors at the polis, rules, in addition to the points previously covered as to the rights of these officers to be present within the rails at polling places, that marshals also have the right to summon a sheriff's posse comitatus to assist them, and also to call upon all organized military bodies for the same purpose.

The acting attorney general adds that the alleged instructions issued in New York, Arkansas and Alabama bring the state officers issuing them under the provisions of United States law as conspiring to obstruct the election of United States officers, of the continuous to obstruct the election of United States are reverted from the full discharge of their official duties, in the discharge of their official duties, in the continuous to obstruct the election of United States are reverted from the full discharge of their duties in which here is no called to carry from the full discharge of their official duties, in the discharge of the persons interfering to obstruct the election of United States and alabama.

Texans will have a foreinste of the force bill at the coming election. Charles Schroeder, of Galveston, supervisor of elections for Texas, came up to Dallas and had a conference with Force Bill Judge A. P. McCormick, which resulted in that republican appointing 180 federal supervisors to control the elections in Galveston, Harris, Fort Bend, Tyler, Orange, Cherokee, Jackson, Wharton and Rusk counties.

Charles Schroeder, of Balveston, a strong supporter of George Clark for governor, is chef supervisor of elections for Texas, and hundreds of armel men will act under his orders on November 8th. Clark's partisans in these counties made this fight and have placed the people practically under martial law. Federal interference in state elections has come at ast in Texas. To say that the democrats of Dallas were indignant today when they learned of this unprecedented and oningeous proceeding is putting it mildly. They were furious.

Shearin and Alex Robbins, for the Elegal interference with and the arrest of Reid. The arrest is to be made tomorrow morning and Saffer will have to go to Weldon.

The morning papers will contain communications urging the democrats of Raleigh to hold a public meeting at once and signify in the most emphatic way their disapproval of Saffer and his methods. The papers, editorially, commend this action.

F. M. Simons, democratic state, chairman, has sent notice to all the state election officers to stand by the law as interpretable of Saffer and the state election officers to stand by the law as interpretable of the state of the stat man, has sent notice to an the state elec-tion officers to stand by the law as inter-preted by State Attorney General David-son, and to submit to no interference or ar-rests by United States supervisors or dep-nix marshals.

Another Alsbams Application.

Florence, Ala., November 3.—(Special.)—A petition has been filed with Judge Bruce, of Huntsville, Judge of the circuit court of the United States for the northern district of Alabama, requesting federal supervision in the county in the coming election. The democratic citizens are indignant and consider it an insult to the people of Lauderdale county, who have always been declared for a free ballot and a fair count.

Lame petition is signed by ten supposed republicans.

Jake Spillberger, one of the signers came out today in a card sworn to before a justice of the peace in which he claims he is a democrat and was deceived into signing the petition on a false representation. The petition was read at a democratic rally last night and the signers received very severe handling by the speakers. A number of leading republicans repudiate the unwise action of their brethren. Lauderdale county is assured for Congressman Wheeler and Grover Cleveland.

The Trouble Over the Democratic Tickets in South Carolina.

The Trouble Over the Democratic Tickets in South Carolina.

Columbia, S. C., November 3.—(Special.)—The publication of the discovery of a defect in the printing of the democratic electorial tickets causes considerable interest in political circles today. The state committee seem inclined to correct the error only in those counties which have reported errors as existing. They seem to overlook the fact that all the tickets are probably the same as to size wherein the defect exists. The disposition of the committee appears to be to accept the simple statement of the county chairman to the effect that the have received the tickets as meaning that they are all right.

The committee were informed by the assistant attorney general today that if the tickets did not come up to the letter of the law they should be reprinted in the right form or there would be serious trouble. Secretary Tompkins has wired the situation to State Chairman Irby and tickets to be sent to those counties which have reported the trouble are being printed. The tickets for Richland county were today returned to the printer. The defective tickets have been cut for about a week, and by this time they have been scattered through all the country districts. There is danger ahead if the measures to rectify the errors are not promptly and energetic. The third party people were seen today and the state that uneir tickets are all right.

News was today received that fifty masked men went to the jail in Allemance and took therefrom J. S. Sewell, the white man against whom the grand jury has re-turned a true bill for the murder of J. F. Matthews, a young merchant. Sewell was taken a mile away, a rope was placed around his neck, he was swung up, and a demand was made for what he Charged with Wife Murder. At the request of T. O. Kelley, her father, the body of Mrs. Lorena Rich has been exhumed at Mount Olive, and an autopsy made by the coroner in the presence of the jury. This revealed that her neck was broken in two places, and that her skull was fractured. A telegram has been sent to South Carolina, ordering the arrest of W. C. Rich, the dead woman's husband, on the charge of murder. Rich was charged with murder several weeks ago, but was acquitted for lack of evidence.

THE CHARGES CLEARED UP-

Columbia, S. C., November 3.-(Special.) The three criminal cases against E. Brooks Sligh, the young society man who is the republican nominee for congress in the fifth district, were disposed of today in the Yorkville court. He was charged, first, with stealing the law books of the late W. A. Sanders. The second was an indictment for carrying concented weapons, and the third was for obtaining names to a note on false representations.

Sligh went to New York a few days ago for the purpose of getting money to pay out. He returned to Chester Tuesday with the money he says, but was knocked down by some one Tuesday night and robbed. Early yesterday morning he came in through the country badly torn up from the previous night's adventure. Sligh was ing sixteen law books from the library of his late partner, W. A. Sanders, and the verdict was not guilty.

The other two cases were to be called this to plead guilty of the concealed weapon charge and pay a fine of $30. In the case of obtaining names on a note by false repto this extent: That Sligh will give a new note and pay all costs. This disposes of all the charges against him.

St. Louis, November 3.—Gus Boylies, alais E. E. Rose, alias George H. From his own lips it was learned that he was wanted in Columbus, Pittsburg, Cincinnati, New York, Washington, Charleston, S. C., Chattanooga, Tenn., and New Orleans on similar charges, and that he was preparing to operate in St. Louis with bogus checks, drafts, etc., on a large scale. His attempted work here was issuance of checks payable to himself with the forged signature of the Southwestern Supply Company attached. Formerly in Columbus he was a member of the music firm of Boylies In Co., but ruined himself and the firm by "wine and women."

A Bold Robbery Which Took Place There Yesterday.

Rome, Ga., November 3.—(Special.)—
Last night about midnight George Goden was held up in North Rome and robbed.

Mr. Goden works at the Cundell furniture shops in North Rome and near 12 o'clock he left the shops and started for his home and when he reached a point near Luke Johnson's store four men came up behind him. Two went on one side and two on the other, and Goden supposed they intended to pass him and paid no attention to them. The men, without saying a word, seized his arms and three of them held him fast, while the other went through all of his pockets. They took from him a gold watch and chain worth $75, and his pocketbook contained $100, and not satisfied with this they took the hat from his head. After a thorough search and when all valuables had been taken, one of the robbers said, "All right," and the other men released Goden and hurried away. This was the only word spoken during the robbery. Goden says the man who searched him was white, but he could tell nothing about the others. It is believed that an organized band of robbers are infesting this section.

est crowd ever assembled here greeted Senator Hill tonight. Mr. Hill, among other things, said:

"The campaign of 1892 is drawing to a close. A few more days and the discussion and labor and contest will be ended. It has not been a campaign of bluster, nt least on the democratic side. The issues have been presented to the intelligent, sober judgment of the American people and by their deliberate decision we will contentedly abide.

"I desire to say that it is to the credit of the American people of all political parties that this campaign has been decent and respectable. There has been no considerable amount of personal abuse or vituperation. So far as the two candidates are concerned both have served the people as president of the republic and both are endowed with honesty, capacity and intelligence. The people are familiar with their lives and public services. It is a pleasure to say that while we believe the election of our candidate will be serve the interest of the people, yet the country will not be discredited whatever the result may be.

"I recollect, and you recollect, that back in 1884 they said that in event of democratic success the rebel debt would be paid the federal debt be repudiated, slavery be restored and one industries paralyzed. The democratic came to naught; and instead of the country tells harmed we had one of the cest administration we ever had.

"The personal honesty of the gentleman who occupied the presidential chair-Graver Lievellard—has never been questioned by his bitterest foe. His administration was creditable to the country and honored with page at him and accused the republicans of selfshiess and greed. In conclusion Mr. Hill said:

"You do not expect me in this late day of the campaign to eulogize our candidates. The time now to air it. If I had any grievance I would not take this time to refer to it. The thing to do is to gather our arms and to march forward to yictory."

APPEAL TO BUSINESS MEN

Of the North and West From Their Customers in the South.

Birmingham, Ala., November 3.—Over one hundred of the leading merchants and firms of this city, including representatives of all the banks, have signed and promulgated an address to the business men of the north. It reads as follows:

"We, bankers and merchants of Birmingham, Ala., hereby express our deep concern in the presidential election of next Tresday, the 8th of November, and when we recall the unparalleled development and prosperity of the whole country during the four years of Cleveland's administration, and when we recall the unparalleled depression of the last three years, throughout the south and, believing as we do that our former prosperity was largely due to the confidence of the whole country in governmental politics, which were strictly adhered to and followed by Mr. Cleveland and to the confidence of the business world in his wise, conservative and impartial administration of the affairs of government, and believing that our present condition is brought about largely by the continued menace of the force bill, to which Harrison and his party are unqualifiedly committed, we do hereby appeal to bankers and merchants of western states, who deal with us and who are our friends, to assist us in preventing such dire disaster to American liberty as the force bill or any other bill of like importance and that, therefore, we urge upon our brethren of the north to use all legitimate means to procure the election of Cleveland and Stevenson."

An Interesting Query About the Rogis: tration Laws in Georgia.

AUDGE SPEER'S IMPORTANT DECISION

visors Will Be Appointed for Ric and and Wilkinson-Full Discus-ation of the Registration Law.

on, Ga., November 8.—(Special.)— no registration laws of the various of Georgia null and void, so far counties of Georgia null and void, so far as they affect congrussional elections?

Judge Emory Speer evidently thinks so.
Judge Emory Speer evidently thinks so.
Judge Speer this morning rendered his flecision in the Richmond and Wilkinson county cases and in doing so laid down his construction of the statutes relating to the case in a way that is calculated to create smething of a sensation in Georgia.

He overrules the objections of the Young Men's Democratic League, of Augusta, and federal supervisors will be appointed for R hmond and Wilkinson counties.

Judge Speer's decision is a lengthy one, but judy at this time it is highly interesting.

He begins by giving a review of the case.

for Ri hmond and Wilkinson counties.

July Speer's decision is a lengthy one, but just at this time it is highly interesting. He begins by giving a review of the case. He presents the argument advanced by the officers of the Young Men's Democratic League, the principal point of which seems to be embodied in the following:

"All the way through the statute seems to treat registration as part of the election as much requiring supervision as the mere act of voting itself. We think this is very clearly shown in section 2011 which provides the judge within not less than ten days prior to the registration, if one there be, or, if no registration be required, within not less than ten days prior to the election, shall open the circuit court. By the act of 1887 are gistration is required in Richmond county. By the acts of 1885 one is required for Wilkinson county, and our position is that the registration books being now closed and no application having been made ten days prior to the registration, it is not too late for supervisors to be appointed."

Commenting on this, Judge Speer says:
"After the careful consideration of the views of the committee, which the high character of its members, all of whom are distinguished members of the bar of this court would naturally occasion, we find it impossible to assent to their conclusions. Section 2011 of the revised statutes provices that, 'Whenever, in any city or town having upward of twenty thousand inhabitants, there are two citizens thereof, or whenever, in any county or parish, in any congressional district, there are ten citizens thereof, of good standing, who, prior to any registration of voters for an election for representative or delegate in the congress of the United States, or prior to any election at which a representative or delegate in the congress of the United States, or prior to any election to which we have such registration, or such election, or both, guarded and scrutinized, the judge, within not less than ten days prior to the election, shall open the ci in the statute, the appointment of supervisors is authorized to guard and scrutinize the registration, if there be a registration, or the election, or both, as the applicants may decition, or both, as the applicants may dre.

The language of the statute must bear construction which its words clearly out. If the application is to have the application is to have the application is to have the statute must be not ten days before the registration; if intended to guard and scrutinize the iton, ten days before the election. The ute does not in our opinion, make it obtory upon the supervisors to scrutinize registration unless the application is for ourpose. The opposite construction id nullify the option given the applicate make known to the court their re 'to have such registration, or such tion, or both, guarded and scrutinized.' The representatives of the Young Men's nocratic League, of course, rely naturupon the concluding clause of the nte, to-wit: 'The judge, within not less ten days prior to the registration, if there be, or, if no registration be read, within not less than ten days prior to election, shall open the circuit court quired, within not less than ten days prior to the election, shall open the circuit court at the most convenient point in the circuit.

"But this clause is merely directory of the time in which the court shall be open for election purposes and neither confers or denies or limits the power to appoint supervisors. Indeed, section 2013 of the revised statutes, in the same title, provides that the powers and jurisdiction conferred by the several sections in point, shall be exercised as well in vacation as in term time, and the judge sitting at chambers shall have the same powers and jurisdiction.

se, and the judge sitting at chambers all have the same powers and jurisdician to the same powers and jurisdician to appoint is in no sense modified by edirection to open the court for ten a, at a convenient place in the circuit—direction, of course, merely intended to their the convenience of applicants."

Are the Registration Laws Valid?

Are the Registration Laws Valid?

Judge Speer then takes up another vein argument. "If, however, the construction of this statute, as above expressed, is roneous, is it even then true that the pervisors must be denied because of the fistration enactments cited?" he asks. He quotes the constitution of 1877 as to a qualifications of voters. As to registration, and says:

"It Ellows then that it is within the powoff the general assembly of Georgia to equire—to use the word of section 2011 the revised statutes—a registration of term for an election for representative in a congress of the United States or for a election for presidential electors. This gistriction would be, of course, operative of the theory. This is not only the right of the cate, but it is expressly recognized by the derail rw. The grave matter for considation is: Has the state of Georgia registration for all voters at election as registration for all voters at election as registration for all voters at elections? Has the state, which are practilly as varying as they are numerous, such registration law as will relate to such elections? Are such registration laws for parcular counties, and differing among themistration law as will relate to such elections? Are such registration laws for parcular counties, and differing among themistration law as will relate to such elections? Are such registration laws for parcular counties, and differing among themists of the United States?

The provision of the constitution and was of the United States?

The provision of the constitution for a lattice which denies to the voter at a general election, in one county, the privileges and immunities which a voter, at the same election, in another county enjoys."

He cites a large number of cases to show the effect of the registration laws in the different counties of the state.

The decision concludes:

"For the reasons stated, the court is of the aminion that as constituting an obsta-

The decision concludes:

"For the reasons stated, the court is of the opinion that, as constituting an obstacle to the appointment of supervisors to supervise a general election, the registration enactments of the general assembly of Georgia are inoperative and void, because in conflict with the constitution of the state. But, if this were not true, it would be none the less our duty to disregard them. They are plainly in conflict with section 2005 of the revised statutes, which provides:

They are plainly in conflict with section 2005 of the revised statutes, which provides:

"When, under the authority of the constitution or laws of any state, any act is required to be done as a prerequisite or qualification for voting and by such constitution or laws persons or officers are charged with the duty of furnishing to citizens an opportunity to perform such prerequisite, or to become qualified to vote, every such person and officer shall give to all citizens of the United States the same and equal opportunity to perform such prerequisite, and to become qualified to vote."

"Now, it is not enough that all the citizens of the same county shall have an equal opportunity, but all the electors of the same general election, must have the equal opportunity, but all the rerequisite and become qualified to vote, and it is a necessary implication of the language of this statute of the United States, that the prerequisite for voting at the same general election must be equal to each elector.

"It follows, therefore, that since the federal law requires uniformity in the prerequisites of the right to vote as affecting the citizen, otherwise entitled to vote, at the national election, and further requires that each citizen shall have an equal opportunity to do the act made a prerequisite to the right of voting, varying and durate to the right of enactments, making different prerequisites and denying equal opportunities to perform them, are contrary to the federal statute and nugacontrary to the federal statute and leaving.

"The power of the state of Georgia to enact a general and uniform registration law is not questioned; the power is undoubted and its exercise might well lead to the most salutary results to the fairness and regularity of elections. To conform, however, both to the state constitution and the national laws, it must have a uniform effect upon all electors, and we hold that such a registration law has not yet been enacted.

"For the reasons above enumerated the

A PERMANENT BREACH.

Dawson, Ga., November 3.—(Special.)—There is trouble in the republican ranks of Terrell county. It dates back to the beginning of the campaign several weeks ago, when the negroes held their first political meeting and a majority of them obeyed Buck's orders and endorsed the third party. When the question of endorsing the third party was first sprung in the political councils of the republicans it was very evident that sentiment among Buck's satellites was not unanimous by any rell County. satellites was not unanimous by any means for hooking on to the tail end of the means for hooking on to the tail end of the calamity party, and on more than one occasion an open rupture was imminent.

Among the prominent republicans who were opposed to the fusion were Nero Clark, chairman of the county executive committee, Rev. W. D. Johnson, T. C. Simmons and others. Being in the minority they submitted to the endorsement, but not before entering a protest and declaring that they would not vote the third party ticket. Matters then went along quietly with them through the state election and up to a few days ago, when the county executive comdays ago, when the county executive com-mittee met to arrange plans and map out work for the national election on next Tues-

When the committee were about to endorse the third party again, including Candidate Hand, Chairman Clark openly rebelled, and for a few seconds, it is said, the wrangle was stormy and exciting. The fusionists had the numbers on Clark, and he abdicated the republican throne by resigning the chairmanship of the committee and leaving the meeting.

George Brooks was elected chairman in Clark's stead and the committee proceeded with its former programme of endorsing the third party and thereby aiding them to again get badly snowed under in Terrell county on next Tuesday. The breach among the republicans is permanent, and Dr. Hand will get only a part of the vote of that very small party in this county.

Cartersville, Ga., November 3.—(Special.)
The synod of the Presbyterian church of Georgia assembled in this city yesterday. The opening service of the meeting was held by Dr. Vass, of Savannah, past moderator, who after a most pleasing discourse on the advancement of the church of Christ, organized the synod for business.

Rev. W. B. Jennings, of Macon, after a most spirited contest, was elected moderator over Dr. Meek, of Augusta.

Dr. T. P. Cleveland, of Atlanta, was made secretary without opposition. The synod will be in daily session during the week, and nightly services will be held by distinguished divines of the church.

The attendance is already more than a hundred and others are expected as the meeting progresses.

The body has already settled down to business and shows that capacity is well developed and understood by the synod.

Dalton, Ga., November 3.—(Special.)—A difficulty occurred at the colored Methodist church last Monday night. The weekly meeting of the church society had gathered there and the brethren and sisters were present in full force, when Richard Shaw, who had gotten a few drinks of "tarantula juice" under his shirt, came in and during the proceedings became so hilarious that Sam Krown, the doorkeeper, had to order him out. This made the bibulous gentleman angry and he proceeded to raise a row. He was at last hustled out of the sacred precincts of the church, but not before he had given Sam Brown a bad cut in the neck with his knife. A warrant for assault with intent to murder was sworn out against him next day, but he had skipped.

Hypnotized and Kidnaped

THE SPORTS WERE NOT IN IT FROM HER HOME IN HELENA, ARK.

Her Mother Believes That She Is in Atlanta and Will Spend Some Time Looking for Her-A Slight Cine.

A gentle eyed lady in black told a strange, sad story to Police Captain Manley yester-day morning, in a voice that trembled with a grief that had found deep root in her All the while she stood talking to the officer at the police station, she nervously turned over a half dozen pictures she car-ried in her hands, now and then stopping to gaze at one for an instant with a look of gaze at one for an instant with a look of supreme tenderness. At such times big tears would well up in her eyes and her emotion would cause her to stop talking for a moment. The pictures were those of a young girl, of open, pretty face and frank eyes fixed in a steady gaze. The features were full and round, and altogether the face was a pretty one. It was not that of a rollicking, mischievous child, but rather that of a studious, and serious minded young person. Long black curls fell in rich profusion upon the girl's shoulders.

The lady selected one of the pictures and held it up. "This one is most like her," she said, in her trembling way, "it has her mouth and eyes and hair. Oh, it is so much like my dear lost child!" She gazet upon the piece of cardboard with consuming love expressed in her eys. She has called on Mrs. Brittain the pastors of nearly all of the Atlanta churches, and a number o. other people give her some clue to her missing daughter. The story is tragic in the intensity of its pathos. She is a widow and has but two children, little Frannie being the oldest. Her family is a highly respectable one, although not very wealthy. Little Frannie dious. It was her ambition and purpose in life to be a teacher, and young as she was she devoted all her fresh young energies toward fitting herself for that vocation in life. She showed signs of being welf adapted to the profession of teaching, being a modest and dignified little miss, whom all her juniors respected and obeyed. Her whole time and thoughts were taken up with this pet scheme of hers to be a teacher. "She used to come and put her arms about my neck," her mother said, "and laying her pretty soft cheek against mine say, in her sweet way, hever mind, mother. Just wait until I get grown up, and get to teachiag; then well get along all right, won't we?"

Little Frannie had a sublime faith in the great things she would be able to do when she grew up and became a teacher, and she loved to talk to her mother of it. A happy life was theirs.

In May, last, a strange man and woman came to Helena. They claimed to be hypnotism, and she gladly availed herself of the first opportunity that offered to see a practical exhibition of this strange supernatural influence that some people are said to be able to influence over others. the puzzling phenomenon of hypnotism. She hever dreamed of the fearful squel that was to follow.

One day—it was May 17th—the hypnotists left Helena, and that day, and with them no doubt, little Frannie Holliday left too, and has been seen since by none who loves or knows her. The sensation caused by her disappearance was more than a nine days' wonder. No one doubted that she was hypnotized and carried away while under the influence of this strange, mysterious spell that makes babes of the strongest.

The mother was wild and the search that began the morning of Frannie's disappearance is going on now. Mrs. Holliday traced her daughter as far as Tennessee, but could follow her no further. While searching through Tennessee, she read in The Constitution an account of two penitent girls rising in Walker street church and asking for prayer. One of the girls said she was from Helena. Mrs. Holliday, quick to jump at any straw of hope, seized upon this bare clue, and came to Atlanta. She reached here Tuesday and went to Folsom's European hotel, where she is stopping. Since being here she has sought the assistance of the police and the church people whom she thought might be able to tell her something of her lost child.

She was accompanied in all her rounds by Mr. Green, manager of the Interstate Abstract company, who has an office in the Epuitable building. She called on Mrs. Brittain yesterday and learned that the girl referred to in The Constitution was not her daughter. That girl was eighteen years old and was sent to the Home of the Good Shepherd, in Brooklyn, on October 5th last.

Mrs. Holliday hopes that she found a clue in something told her by E. M. Roberts. That gentleman had seen a young girl answering very well the description of her daughter, in Atlanta and she is now having it investigated. She has strong hopes that Frannie is in Atlanta and she is now having it investigated. New York, November 3.—The Coney Island Athletic Club, through Judge Newton, this afternoon offered a purse of $35,000 to Bob Fitzsimmons to meet Jim Hall in its arena next April. This is the largest amount of money ever offered in any part of the world to do battle. Fitzsimmons is undecided what course he will take. His inability to make up his mind to accept or reject the offer is due to the request from President Noel, of the Crescent City Athletic Club, to hold off until he can communicate with his clubmates in New Orleans for advice. This is she second time the club has compelled Mr. Noel to ask for time.

Palmyra, Pa., November 3.—Owing to the failure of the water supply, most of the residents of this place are hauling water. Rain fell in Lebanon valley this morning, but not in sufficient quantity to do much good. Water is being sold in the streets of this place by the gallon. Some small streams have totally disappeared in consequence of the protracted drought.

improvement in the physical condition of most of the railroads and that there is a disposition to give quicker and more comfortable transportation. The building of the Southbound road from Columbia to Savannah has opened up a new section of the state and it is proposed to put on a through service from Savannah to northern and eastern points making connection at Columbia with the Richmond and Danville schedules, thus giving residents of the southeastern portion of the state facilities and quicker transportation than they enjoyed before.

The Atlantic Coast Line contemplates during the season bringing into use the "Wilson short cut," being a direct line from Wilson, N. C., to Florence, S. C., saving the mileage heretofore traveled through Wilmington, N. C., and thus making the trip from northern points to our state several hours shorter than it now is. The report urges upon the general assembly the necessity of providing a more definite mode of applying penalties to such corporations as refuse to carry out the directions of the commission.

The turning

The turning point in woman's life brings peculiar weaknesses and ailments. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription or brings relief and cure. It is a powerful, invigorating, restorative tonic and nervine. It imparts strength to the whole system in general, and to the uterine organs and appendages in particular. "Run-down," debilitated and delicate women need it. It's a legitimate medicine—purely vegetable, perfectly harmless. It's guaranteed to give satisfaction in every case, or money refunded. Nothing else does as much. You only pay for the good you get.

Can you ask more?

As a regulator and promoter of functional action, at that critical period of change from girlhood to womanhood, "Favorite Prescription" is a perfectly safe remedial agent, and can produce only good results. It is equally efficacious and valuable in its effects when taken for those disorders and derangements incident to that later and most critical period, known as "The Change of Life."

e Secretary's Report Was a Good One and It Was Accepted—The Home for the Friendless Flourishing.

The annual meeting of the officers of the Home for the Friendless occurred yester-day morning at the home.

day morning at the home.

Every lady interested in the welfare of the Home for the Friendless were on hand, and the report of the secretary, Mrs. Dan Harris, was listened to with much interest. The report showed that the home has been filled to its utmost capacity during the entire year, the average number of inmates being thirty. One hundred children and women have been taken into the home and sent out in different ways. A number of the children were adopted in good homes, others were taken back by their parents, who peeded only temporary relief, while many women and young girls were found positions.

The offer of $3,000 to the home by the Women's Industrial Home was changed to the offer of a lot on the corner of Harris and Ivy streets, and was readily accepted by the Home for the Friendless. The only condition attached was that the industrial school feature should always be kept in the home.

The death of five children is recorded. The Financial Side.

The Financial Side.

The secretary's report shows further that the home is on a good financial basis:

"The treasurer's statement shows that the receipts per month average $288.41, and that the average expenses per month are $182.14. This would make the average balance $106.27.

"Our membership has increased from 255 to 277 during the year. The dues have been dollected to the amount of $261.50, though there are a number of members in arrears."

The report concludes by thanking all those who have aided the Home for the Friendless and The Constitution and Journal are specially mentioned.

Both of these actor are artists fof established reputation. Their speeches glowed with dramatic fire. Their large audience was enthused and burst into hearty applause. Mr. Warde carried off the honors, of course, in this scene. He was called aut, or rather the curtain was called up three times. The last time he stepped forward and, though somewhat out of breath from his lusty elocution. made a graceful speech. He said that in behalf of himself and Mr. James and their company, he desired to thank the audience for its patronage, and especially for its approval of their earnest effort to present Shakespearan plays in an artistic manner.

The next time they visit Atlanta they expect to play in Mr. DeGive's new theater, which, said Mr. Warde, will be an ornament to the city, an honor to the profession and should be the pride of the state.

Miss Bowman, as a page, delivered Antony's message to Brutus with such spirit and charm that she received deserved applause. Miss Wilmot and Miss Chapman, as Portia and Calphurnia, were, perhaps, most effective in those passages where they were nleading with their respective lords, one for his secrets, the other for his welfare.

ELECTION FOR PRESIDENT AND MEMBERS OF CONGRESS TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 8TH.

Now, Raise the Money!

The Constitution called attention recent to the splendid exhibits at the state hir and the Chattahoochee Valley expotion and suggested that it would be a olidate these exhibits and transport om to the great Columbian exposition The result of the visit of Governor en and Mayor Hemphill to Macon is practical endorsement of our suggestion. hey were both strongly impressed by splendid grouping of the state's regovernor's verdict in his own words: "Such an exhibit of the resources of Geor-a as I find here makes me more than ever rious that Georgia be well represented at a world's fair. It is due to the state, and citizens owe it to themselves to see to it the Empire State of the south is well

The fovernor says that if we had the mm of $25,000 a splendid exhibit could be made in Chicago, and he is confident that the whole amount can be raised by popular subscription. In response to this, Mayor Hemphili offers to be one of ten men who will give $500 each to the world's fair fund.

This is a good start, and surely the ne men will not be found wanting, to ement Mayor Hemphill's offer with an equal amount, and the people of Geor-gia will respond as liberally as they can, intil the amount necessary to give us a creditable niche in the world's great galaxy has been secured.

The people of Georgia must not let this great opportunity pass; Georgia must be represented at Chicago; both profit and patriotism demand it.

Haistead and Brooklyn.

Editor Halstead, after covering the entire country with cries of victory, has very small hole in the ground. A few weeks ago, his robust enthusiasm painted the signs of victory red. Against a d south, he confidently pitted a solid ed the welkin to yibrate.

But now the scenery has been shifted, and a new tableau is presented. We behold Mr. Halstead, with his powerful inions furled, and his countenance owned with woe. He has surveyed the country, and now sadly remarks that the it of the election will turn on the in Brooklyn. This is a descent m the pinnacle of Niagara to the shalows of the Ripraps. Nevertheless, it ms to clear away the mists.

Brooklyn is Mr. Halstead wielding his gifted typewriting machine. What is the natural inference? Why, that this ound political professor will be able to wrest Brooklyn from the grip of the democrats. Otherwise, why should Mr. Halstead be content to live surrounded by the depressing provinciality, of a

As to Free Quinine. Some of the republican orators are now claiming that the republican party abol-ished the duty on quinine. The truth of the matter is that The tution began the fight for free ine, and it was opposed by every re-ican organ that thought the matter ortant enough to discuss it. We pegged away at it for months, and finally ded in stirring up a tolerably active public sentiment on the matter.

Those of our readers who remember that discussion know that it grew to be a very warm one. The quinine manufac-turers who had coined millions out of the sities of the sick and the poor, spent ey like water to aid them in stemng the tide of public opinion. The drug was then $6 an ounce, and the manufac turers, led by Powers & Weightman, of lphia, declared that if the duty were removed the American manufacturers would be compelled to go out of business, and the price of quinine would increase in price.

Finally, Dr. Felton introduced a bill in the house to make quinine free. We do not remember the details, but our ion is that the measure was postponed and smothered until, at last, Dr. Felton called it up in the house, and had it passed under a suspension of the rules.

As a matter of fact, the removal of the duty on quinine was a test of the whole protection fraud. If the arguments in favor of protection were true, their truth would have been manifested in the quinine test. Here were all the conditions—foreign competition to come in and uproot our infant industries—the whole protection scheme in a nutshell.

If the arguments of the republican high protectionists are true, what ought to have happened on the removal of the duty on quinine? The infant industries two in Philadelphia and one in New York—ought to have been uprooted and destroyed by foreign competition, and then, having the whole field to them-selves, the foreign manufacturers ought to have advanced the price even higher than $6 an ounce. This is the republican

But what really happened was that the price of quinine gradually went down from 46 an ounce (it had been as high as 50) until it is now 75 tents an ounce. Strange to say, the genuise manufacture ers are prospering and not one of them has gone out of business. The true in-wardness of the republican high tariff is shown by the fact that the manufacturers of quinine who formerly received $6 and $7 an ounce can make it at a profit for 75 cents. We are glad to see the quinine tariff discussion revived. It is a type of the whole high tariff discussion, and we shall see to it that it cuts hereafter a more prominent figure.

The Negro and the Force Bill.

The open letter to President Harriso from Rev. Andrew H. Chambers, one of the most prominent colored ministers in North Carolina, should be widely read, as it doubtless will be. It is an argument against the force bill emanating from the very people in whose interests it is supposed to have been framed—an argument which will doubtless set the advocates of the infamous measure to thinking.

This colored minister, thoroughly familiar with the conditions that surround his race, and the political situation as it affects the colored voters of the south, says to the president:

says to the president:

I beg to point out to you the strong resemblance between your words on fair elections in your letter of acceptance and the programme of deception, unlatentional though it may be. But the resemblance is so manifest that when your attention is called to it, I am sure you will readily admit it, and what is more to the point, to immediately repudiate any ulterior purpose in recommending the is more to the point, to immediately repudiate any ulterior purpose in recommending the passage of the unpatriotic and villalnous Lodge-Davenport election bill, of an ill-starred and mobbish congress, or any bill of similar purpose, scope and character. If you value the rights of the states, the peace of all people and the safety and happiness of my race, you will grant this petition.

These are plain words, and they express the true sentiments of the more latter.

the true sentiments of the more intelligent colored voters of the south; the writer proves that the force bill would be a calamity instead of a blessing, to his race, and incidentally shows that there is no hope in republicanism for the negro,

His letter, published in the at heart. His letter, published in The Constitution yesterday, should be read by every colored voter in Georgia and the south at large. It tells the truth, Repudiating the Ocala Convention.

The third party leaders used to pretend that they were very much devoted to the Ocala demands. Tom Watson, we re nember, made a good deal of fuss over the Ocala demands during the last cam paign before he had decided to desert the lemocratic party. This was when he was fishing with a very long pole for alliance votes.

Afterwards, when the third party lead ers concluded to go into a separate political organization, they made the Ocals demands the basis of their platform, and in all subsequent platforms, these demands have been endorsed. But of late, we hear nothing about these demands except from the democratic alliancemen who have not lost their heads. The question, therefore, arises, what are the third party people going to do about the Ocala lemands? Do they propose to repudiate them?

When the attitude of the third parts leaders toward the force bill is taken into consideration, the matter becomes important, for one of the features of the Ocala convention was a ringing denunciation of the force bill. The third party leaders have been and are still doing all they can to belittle the issue that the Ocals convention denounced. The national al liance, on the other hand, true to the principles of the order, is urging farmers to vote with the democrats, in order to

The state library is an institution that ought to be carefully fostered and enlarged. It was established in the better days of the republic, and modern legislators could pay no more graceful tribute to the traditions of old Georgia than to bring the

"Intelligent Political Independence."

Awhile ago, some paragrapher made he remark that in all probability Colonel John A. Cockerill, editor of the two Advertisers of New York, might have been a piney woods kuklux in Missouri in his younger days.

A casual reference to this would-be hunorous statement in The Constitution and in one of Mr. Clark Howell's Herald letters has given the gifted colonel an opportunity to write a short autobiography of himself in his two Advertisers. It is not every man who is enabled to give the public a concise autobiography of himself for supper and a terse synopsis of the same for breakfast.

The sketches are very interesting. We learn from them that the colonel was born in Ohio, that he served in the union army, and that "for ten years he has exercised intelligent independence in politcal matters." He makes no mention of the fact that the independent cable has recently, as it were, slipped from his grip, but such small admissions are to be look ed for in a hastily prepared sketch.

Nevertheless, the fact should be borne in mind that for a time during the past ten years, Colonel Cockerill was the real and responsible editor of The New York World, and that, under his management, The World was, as it has been since, a vigorous democratic partisan. At the present moment Colonel Cockerill is edit-ing two violent republican organs, and the nestion arises, if he was exercising inelligent political independence on the emocratic World, is he now exercising it on his two republican organs? There seems to be a hitch here somewhere.

Moreover, if he can exercise intelligent political independence while editing the democratic World and the two republican Advertisers, why could he not exercise intelligent political independence as a piney woods kuklux?

As anxious searchers after unadulterat ed truth we are interested in getting definite answers to these questions. It seems to us that a man who has the gift of exercising intelligent political independence as the editor of one democratic organ and two republican organs, is certainly gifted enough to retain his political independence unruffled as an humble out earnest piney woods kuklux.

But if we are mistaken about this, we want to be set right. Will Colonel Cockerill unveil the mystery?

Slandering Mr. Cleveland. The Richmond State replies in a spirited and patriotic manner to an article in The New York Press attacking Mr. Cleveland and General D. H. Maury, of Vir-

The Press has long been known as bitter republican sheet, and it does not hesitate to slander the south and southern men when the interests of the party it represents are benefited thereby. Its latest slander is as follows:

D. H. Maury, of Virginia, was a West Pointer, who was dismissed in disgrace from the union army as a traitor in June, 1861. He promptly entered the confederate army and achieved distinction by repulsing Sherman's forces with fearful slaughter at Chickasaw Bayou in December, 1862. Mr. Cleveland rewarded him by the appointment as minister to Colombia, salary $7,500. Oleveland rewarded him by the appointment as minister to Colombia, salary $7,500.

Our Richmond contemporary very properly brands this as "a cowardly and infamous slander," and in refutation of it Cleveland was the first president since the war to rise above sectionalism and to recog-nize the south as a part of the union en-titled to a share in the honors and emoluments of the government. As president he selected southerners of character and standing in their homes, and he could not do this without selecting many men who served in the con-federate army, and who will never make apologies for such services. General Maury was adjutant general of New Mexico when Virginia seceded. He very promptly resigned and started for his native state. In so doing he voluntarily surrendered brighb prospects of advancement. He was popular in the army, and was met everywhere with expressions of regret, but with not one word of condemnation. He stood by his mother state. Among the friendly letters he received from his comrades then was one from George B. McClelland, afterwards General McClelland, in which the writer said that General Maury had simply done as he was doing, namely, stood by his native state.

The above answers the slanders of The New York Press and vindicates the men against whom they were directed. There nothing surprising, however, in The Press' appeal to sectional prejudices; it is a part of the republican programme in the present campaign; republican editors have assailed Mr. Cleveland on all sides; but in every instance their arrows have faller short of the mark. It is, with the republican party, a campaign of schemes, of slander, of sectionalism-of anything that will advance its interests; but the people are wiser than the politicians; they are standing by Cleveland and his record, and they will prove their faith at the ballot in an overwhelming democratic majority.

Boston's Conundrum.

Periodically Boston is powerfully pes tered with the question whether she is still the literary center. For several years the newspapers have been inquiring through the editorial columns. "Are we about to lose our literary prestige?" and the whole town has been going about with wrinkled brows and a certain air of unpleasant abstraction.

The Boston Globe, which is evidently bent on putting an end to municipal anxiety, has addressed a note to certain Boston authors, asking them to write a few lines in answer to the question, "Is Boston's literary prestige gone?" The Globe accompanies the letters of the authors with their portraits, and a casual glance at these is itself an answer to the question. The pictures declare that Boston's literary prestige has gone glimmering. The letters, however, are both funny and instructive.

Mrs. Margaret Deland thinks the literary prestige of Boston is about to be undermined by personal journalism, and she intimates that the literary people in that settlement are too plague-on'd selfconscious. Mr. William Apthorp says that he has read no American literature during the past twenty years, nor has he talked with anybody concerning it. He rarely reads the newspapers, still more rarely the magazines, and therefore knows nothing about the matter. But, some time ago, he heard a man say that Boston is "a dencedly unstimulating place for a literary man to live in." Mr. Apthorp rather coincides in this opinion, and we judge he would vote for more stimulants for Boston. Miss Louise Imogen Guiney writes truly literary letter, in which she talks about "the late contagion of theosophy and golden socialism." Nevertheless, she thinks that Boston is going down hill after the manner of Florence. She doesn't say, however, whether Florence went down hill sidewise, or slid down as the boys used to do at school. Mr. F. J. Stimson thinks that commercial narrowness has something to do with the predic ament which Boston is supposed to be in. He says that "for thirty years our government has been run to the injury of Boston"-that is, to the literary prestige of Boston—and he says that the city is provincial. All this is very funny-for what could be funnier than the idea that Boston, or Billville, or White Plains, or Popcastle, or Kinderhook, has anything whatever to do with literary production? The corporation of Boston used to be the center of our publishing trade. It is no longer so. It has given way before New York, just as New York in the course of another generation will give way to Chicago, which seems destined to be the real metropolis of the country.

"The laws of the United States provided for deputy marshals in cities of 20,000 inhabitants. Hence their appointment in Mobile, Montgomery and Birmingham is perfectly legal and they will be entitled to every facility for executing their duties. Nobody in Alabama, we are sure, has any other than a perfectly quiet, peaceful and orderly day of it in our chief cities. We are all insisting strenuously that the federal authorities confine themselves strictly to the law, and certainly no democrat has any other purpose than himself to obey the law. If, however, these deputy marshals make their appearance at the polling places outside of the three cities where they may lawfully act, a conflict between the federal and state authorities is not among the impossibilities. As General Shelley said in his telegram to the democrats of Dallas, the state has charge of the election and will conduct it."

As the matter now stands, a separate registration is necessary for city elections, from the registration required for state and national elections, and the city people are so frequently called upon to register that they scarcely know when they are registered. The purpose is to save such frequent necessity for registration, and at the same time, under proper safeguards, to give all who desire an opportunity to register once in each year to cover all elections.

will. I have observed the sentiment of the smaller towns—the towns whose aggregate majority must be over come—and I never saw such revolution in national political views as there is at this time. The third and fourth generations of families who have been republicans feel the error of their ways and turn the faces towards the sunrise of respectable politics. I want to say that a great deal of this horest sentiment is due to the attitude and the speeches of Wayne MacVeagh. I remember once when I was a reporter on the Danthe speeches of Wayne MacVeagh. I remember once when I was a reporter on the Philadelphia Times I was sent to Mr. McVeagh; office to interview him on some prominent as ue of the day. It was not political. After I had informed him of the nature of my mission Mr. MacVeagh said: 'Young man, when I feel that I will benefit my fellow citizens by making my views known I will do so from the stump.' Mr. MacVeagh has fuidiled this presise and with great effect, and I predict the either Pennsylvania will overthrow her 20,000 republican majority or she will come so day as to cause the bosses to quake in the shees."

Speaker Charles F. Crisp left for his home in Americus yesterday afternoon. He was accompanied by Mrs. Crisp and his son Mr. Charles R. Crisp.

Speaker Crisp reached here from New York Tuesday evening. He was ill when he arrived-overcome by his work in the campaign—and was compelled to remain in Atlanta. Mrs. Crisp was telegraphed for and came Wednesday. He was simply vercome by physical exhaustion, but began to improve Wednesday evening, and was well enough to go home on the afternoon Central train yesterday.

This illness has caused him to break the only engagement of the campaign which he has failed to fill. He was to have spotempt to go to Augusta he said might prove serious. Though the speaker was particularly anxious to visit Augusta he felt un-be physically to do so, and wired the Augusta people to that effect.

He has delivered forty-two speeches since the opening of the campaign. He began here nessee, Kentucky, Michigan, New York, and New Jersey. During last week he spoke every day. His first speech in New York was at Olean, then in New York city before the Wholesale Dry Goods club, and then in Newark and Paterson, N. J., and Lowerville, Fayettesville, Herkime and Conajaharie.

Cleveland Will Be Elected Though ill the speaker wore a smile of colitical contentment when he told a Constitution reporter of the bright democratic

BEAUTIFUL "ALABAMA."

It Will Be Seen Tonight with the Original The story of "Alabama." which comes for upon the theory of a magnetic naturalness.

The play is in four scenes, or four acts, and the action occurs roundabout two old-fashioned Alabama buildings, one occupied by Mrs. Page, a widow: the other by Colonel Preston, a southerner from long before the war. It is proposed to build a railway through the propett is handled by two northerners, Captain Davenport and his agent, Mr. Armstrong. At this crisis of northern progress, Mrs. Page is accused by the brother of her deceased husband of never having been a legal wife, and that brother, a shrewd financial speculator, suffers soon afterward the indignity of receiving a glass of water in his face, thrown by the aged Colonel Preston. Then Mr. Armstrong falls in love with Carey Preston, the colonel's gran-laughter, and is prevented from leoping with her by his friend Davenport, who colonel's gran's laughter, and is prevented from eloping with her by his friend Davenport, who turns out to be the colonel's son, who had been looked upon as lost. All these slight, simple threads of the story are brought together nearly in the final act.

The company which performs "Alabama" is one of the most magnificient gathering of artists that has come to Atlanta in many season; and includes Francis Carlyle, J. H. Stoddart, E. M. Holland, Walden Ramsey, Edward S. Abeles, Odell Williams, J. C. Saville, Jennie Eustace, Emily Seward, Guido Marburg, Lelia Wolston and Zennide Vislaire.

HANFORD IN JULIUS CAESAR.

A Splendid Performance at the Edgewood

Tonight, at the Edgewood Avenue theater, Charles Hanford and his company will begin a two nights' engagement, presenting for the first time here, Booth and Barrett's production of "Julius Caesar." Mr. Har ford's performances of Marc Antony have pronction of "Julius Caesar." Mr. Hanford's performances of Marc Antony have achieved a national reputation and the publie will be left to judge of his faithful portrayal of this, the best of all Shakespeare's parts. The support is the very best, including E. K. Spencer, whose Cassius is secoud to none in this country, and Bennett Matlack as Brutus. The scenery for these productions is the original scenery used by Messrs. Booth and Barrett, and has never been seen before outside of Philadelphia,

New York, Boston and Chicago.

Mr. Hanford's company is a comparatively new one and for that reason he is not known very well in this part of the country.
If his performances are not what they are represented to be then may the people of Atlanta call him what he would deserve to be called—"fraud." Mr. Hanford proposes to establish a reputation for himself as a star and he has surrounded himself with a competent company, and it is safe to predict that he will meet the approval of the Atlanta public. The seats will remain at $1,50 and 25 cents.

The "Spider and Fly."

The "Spider and Fly."

M. B. Leavitt's new spectacular production, "Spider and Fly." will be presented at De-Give's Monday and Tuesday evenings, and Tuesday matinee, November 7th and 8th. It is no easy matter to describe all the attractive features which have been crowded into the prologue and three acts of "Spider and Fly." With its manifold noveities and a host of talented performers, which were mostly recruited abroad, and its wealth of beautiful costames, its gorgeous scenery, armor, mechanical effects, transformations, sparkling music, movel specialties, clever pantomime, brilliant ballets and evolutions, it presents an entertainment in which the brightest features of comedy, pantomime, opera and specialty are artistically blended. There are sixty people in this season's production, and they are said to embrace the very choicest of European celebrities and America's best pantomimists, comedians, vocalists, specialty and buriesque artists. Notable among the numerous features of the company is Jaguarina, whose skill, strength and courage entitle her to a prominent place in the foremost ranks of the celebrated women of this age. During the last two years Jaguarina has held herself in readiness to meet all comers with the sword on foot or on horseback and accepted all challengs, meeting in combat on horseback Sergeant Owen Davis, champlon of the United States army, whom she defeated in twenty-one attacks by a score of four points in her avor. She has met all the celebrated swordsmen of the world, and demonstrated the fact to the fullest extent that athletic training is the highest degree of physical development. Courage, skill in the use of weapons a thorough howledge of the control of animals and even tests of valor and strength against formidable male adversaries need not become incompatible with the greatest charms of ideal woman-bood.

THEY TAFFY TALIAFERRO. A Third Party Circular Begging Votes for Sam Small.

A large number of addresses on yellow paper have been issued to the voters of the people's party in this congressional district. Chairman Barrett starts out the circular with the melodramatic expression that "the day of trial is upon us." In big, black letters he says: "Hon. ONLY ONE MAN DISQUALIFIED.

The board of revisers that had in charge the correction of Fulton's list of registered voters have completed their work. Only one man was scratched from the list and the reason for scratching his name was that he had failed to take out his papers of naturalization until last October and though he had been a resident of the county for seven years he had never paid his poll tax.

The list of registered voters as corrected by the board of revisers aggregates a total registration of nearly nine thousand voters. If every man who has qualified will go to the polls next Tuesday and exercise the right of suffrage Atlanta will be able to give the democracy a rousing vote.

Captain Morrow Will Run.

Captain J. W. Morrow has announced his candidacy for re-election to the office of sheriff which he has filled for two years. Without any disparagement to the honorable gentlemen who may become his competitors in the race, it may be truthfully said of Captain Morrow that he has made a clean record as sheriff. He is a great electioneerer and will wage an aggressive campaign. He has not yet announced his associates on his ticket.

History will repeat itself next week in Atlanta, and when the surging crowd gathers in front of The Constitution office to ritness the election returns displayed upon the canvas, they will shout themselves hoarse as they read the news of a grand democratic tidal wave sweeping the country rom Maine to California.

There is no doubt in the world of Mr. Cleveland's election, but we want to begin the fight with a big rally in order to marshal our forces and prepare for the largest cast ing of ballots that Atlanta has ever known in her history.

The executive committee of the county has arranged for a fine lot of speaking, and the best orators the state will hold forth on that occasion. Among the speakers who will entertain the unterrified democracy will be: Hon. F. G. duBignon, Hon. Steve Clay, Hon. Charles F. Crisp, Hon. N. J. Hammond, Colonel Evan P. Howell, Mr. Hoke Smith, Westber, Gaussia Lohn B.

Governor W. J. Northen, General John B. Gordon and many others.

The speaking will commence promptly at 8 o'clock, and will be held at the artesian

And She Became the Conductor's Bride Under Sad Circumstances.

Marietta, Ga., November 3.—(Special.)—Some days ago Captain A. J. Slatten, a conductor on the Western and Atlantic railroad, happened to a serious accident by having a pair of car steps to break with him at Adairsville. His mother and intended wife, Miss Minnie Fleming, were telegraphed for and they arrived on the first train. Mr. Slatten railled some and the young lady's mother wrote her to come home. The young lady could not bear the thought of leaving her wounded lover, so a preacher was sent for and a marriage license procured, and the two were dappily married, so the separation was not necessary. The devotion and fidelity of the young lady was great. She is one of Smyrna's most charming belies. Captain Slatten is slowly recovering and will soon take up his abode at his elegant cottage in Smyrna.

Whether this is true or not we are not prepared to say, but it is reported by some who saw the masked mob leave Wilson's house that one of the number was being half carried in the arms of two of his comrades as though badly hurt in some way.

Atlanta's Veteran Ex-Judge Passes

TRIBUTE OF THE BAR TO JUDGE COLLIER.

Seventy Years of His Long and Eventful Life Were Spent in this Locality. His Funeral Today.

Yesterday morning just as the sun was rising, the spirit of Judge Collier was ushered into the light of a new day.

Surrounded by the members of his family and a few intimate friends who were permitted to enter the room, the heart of the veteran ex-judge finished its long court.

irs before the end came the ap proach of death was awaited in sorrowful stlence. The physicians had offered no encouragement, and from the start had given hat his death was only a question of a few Slowly the night wore away and the hours lragged heavily across the hearts of the patient watchers around his bedside. But just as the finger of the clock pointed to the hour of six the awful suspense was end-ed, and after a long and eventful life of nearly four score years, the old man slep eacefully as a little child.

He never regained the possession of his faculties, and from the time he was first stricken until he entered the valley of the shadow of death, he was unable to recog-

When it was first learned yeste ing that Judge Collier had been stricken with paralysis, and that fears were entertained of his recovery, a stream of callers began of his recovery, a stream of callers began to pour into his gate and throughout the entire day the homestead was besieged with anxious enquirers. Many of them were old friends of Judge Collier and had seen him along the streets and been familiar with his face for more than forty years. When they receives the tidings that the judge was slowly dying they turned away from the door with a sad look and passed out of the gate as if a great shadow had fallen across their hearts, and a song had gone from out their lives.

gate as if a great shadow had fallen across their hearts, and a song had gone from out their lives.

No man in Fulton county was more universally beloved than Judge Collier. From boyhood he had lived among the hills where now the city of Atlanta stands, and many a time he had gathered hickory nuts along her avenues and among the groves where she now displays her civis beauty.

Seventy years in one place is a long period of time and it seems a great deal longer when measured by the wonderful events that have come to light within that interval of time. He came to this section long before Atlanta was dreamed about—in the stirring days of the Cherekee Indians—and here he lived in the woods and grew up to be a man before Atlanta was ever cradled among the pines. And yet today she stretches out like a giant and bids fair to outstrip the other cities that were given the start of a century.

During that long stretch of eventful history Judge Collier was not idle and his relationship with man increased his personal friendships and gave him an intimate acquaintance throughout the section.

Judge Collier was the father of eight children—five sons and three daughters, as follows: Mr. John Collier, Mr. Lamar Collier, Mr. C. A. Colller, Mr. Henry L. Collier, Mr. Walter Collier, Mrs. Ella Turner, Mrs. F. W. McRae and Mrs. Lillie Bell.

Dalton, Ga., November 3.—(Special.)—Aside from politics and kuklux the raising of tobacco is attracting the attention of the people more than any one thing else. R. M. Herron, one of Dalton's largest dry goods merchants planted eight acres in tobacco, on an old farm he took for debt and tried to sell for $3 per acre; He realized nearly $1,000 profit. He built a snow, process curing barn with hot air flues at a cost of $200 to demonstrate to farmers that there was more money in tobacco than in cotton, and he has done so successfully, and the result is that such men as P. The Opponents to Mrs. Wolfe's Home Call on Captian English

AND DEMAND THAT A CASE BE MADE.

He Gives Them a Very Exhaustive Expla nation Showing Why the Police Have Not Made a Case.

Chairman of the police board, J. W. English, entertains some mighty sensible views concerning Mrs. Wolfe's home for the homeless girls, and these views he stated very plainly to four gentlemen who are of the home, who called on him Tuesday in

The four gentlemen were received at Captain English's office. Their hearts have not softened towards Mrs. Wolfe by all the touching editorials that have been printed and by all the favorable expr of opinion in regard to the home. They are of opinion in regard to the home. They are still relentlessly opposed to Mrs. Wolfe establishing her good work in their midst. They think the police have failed to do their duty, and they are not very complimentary in their remarks concerning the officers.

They called on Captain English to ask that he instruct Chief Connolly to make a case against Mrs. Wolfe and have her ejected from the house.

Captain English listened attentively to their complaint and when they were through the talked some. "Gentlemen," said he, "you've asked me to do something you are not willing to do yourselves. Here is a lady engaged in the noble Christian work of reclaiming fallen girls from ruin, and I am asked to send an fficer and have a case made against her have her brought into court, when I have no evidence against her to show that sh has violated the law. You ask me to raid the house, and subject myself to a suit fo damages, and bring upon myself the in-dignation of the right-thinking people of this entire state for disturbing a lady who is struggling to establish a charitable work. am willing to give you gentlemen all the assistance in my power, if you insist that a case be made, and can furnish me evilence that she has violated the law."

"But," said one of the gentlemen, "she has violated the law. She has women there. We've seen girls go there with bundles who never came away."

"That's no evidence," Captain English said, "you've got to prove that the women. "That's no evidence," Captain English said, "you've got to prove that the women of that character are not debarred from Mrs. Wolly's home. Can you do that? We can't do it. Suppose we go and have Mrs. Wolfe brought into police court, what can we prove?"

"We've seen women washing off Mrs. Wolfe's buggy," said one of the four callers."

woife's "oligy", said of callers."

"And that's no evidence any more than the other fact you mentioned. Isn't the fact that those girls were at work evidence in itself that those girls have determined to lead an honest life. You never see an abandoned woman doing any useful work."

Continuing, Captain English gave a resume of the entire case to the gentlemen, showing why the police had made no case.

Continuing, Captain English gave a resume of the entire case to the gentlemen, showing why the police had made no case, and they were reasons the gentlemen did not answer. He told them, however, that he was ready to instruct the officers to make a case against Mrs. Wolfe when it can be shown that she has violated a city ordinate.

can be shown that she has violated a city ordinance.

The four gentlemen left without any further expression, but they had not given up the fight.

They will continue, it is understood, to push their investigations to try to find some evidence against Mrs. Wolfe and have a case made.

Captain English has shown them the attitude of the police department toward the home.

During the past twenty-four hours in the south Atlantic and gulf coast regions rains have been quite general, though in some of the states of this section of the country, as in Georgia, only light local rains were reported up to 7 o'clook last evening. The heaviest rairfall reported yesterday was .64 of an inch at Knoxville.

Maximum temperatures yesterday were con-scherably higher than on the day previous in the Dakotas, Colorado, Kansas and other states of the northwest, while in other portions of the country temperature changes have been little except in Texas, Arkansas and western Teanessee, in which sections cooler weather has been reported.

The highest maximum temperature reported yesterday was 82 degrees at Savannah, Jacksonville and New Orleans. Freesing temperatures were reported yesterday morning in western Texas, in Kanas and over the greater portion of the northwest.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

the Day on the Floor of the New York Stock

New York, November 3.—The approaching presidential election was again a brief topic of discussion at the stock exchange and the market suffered in consequence. Transactions dwindled down to 12,900 shares and unlisted 10,000 shares. Despite the duliness the undertone of speculation was strong and changes such as they were, were generally in the direction of higher prices. Among the usually active stocks Chicago Gas scored the greatest net advance, closing at 94 7-8 against 94 yesterday. New England moved up 3-4 and Northern Pacific Preferred, St. Paul, Rock Island and Louisville and Nashville about 1-2 per cent each. Missouri Pacific sold off a fraction. Special Ties afforded a marked contrast up to uninteresting movements. In the general list Consolidated Gas jumped from 110 1-2 to 124 1-2 on reported probable increase in the rate of dividend and dealings with competing companies, which, however, were denied by insiders. Local Gas was higher on increased earnings. Common rose 1 3-4 and preferred 3 1-2. American Cotton Oil advanced over one point on favorable character of the annual statement of the Pullman Palace Car Company after opening 2 points lower at 197 3-4 rose to 190 7-8. Ohlo Southern sold up 1 1-2, Delaware and Hudson dropped 2 per cent on small sales, American Sugar was also weak at a decline of 1 per cent, the market generally left off firm in tone. One reason for the effected support given to the leading shares we have a superior of the transaction firm; middling 79 1-16; receipts 926 bales.

NEW YORK, November 3.—The market today was again a very take affair and promises to continue so until the election is decided of letting was the most conspicuous part of the business done on the exchange. The gas stocks were the only ones which assumed any prominence. Consolidated Gas scored a big rise as it is said that the tompany is going to move its works over to Long Island, pipe the gas to New York and sell its "almable real estate in this city. Laclede Gas also advanced in sympathy and it is more than likely that some of the other gas stocks in other cities will also be put higher. We are told that Baltimore Gas, paying ab present 1-2 per cent., will also sell higher in the mear future. Sugar was rather heavy, as some trouble is expected with the workmen at three of the New Orieans refineries. About the rest of the list nothing need be said. Prices were favorably affected at first by the unchanged rate of discount of the Bank of England, but this did not bring in any buying orders from the other side. We are also glad to note a good inquiry for grain for export, and it was reported that forty-five loads were taken for shipment today.

A quick decline ensued under the pressure of selling orders from New Orieans. Manchester public advices call the yarn market hardening, and cloths "business offering for quantity at law prices." The temper of our market has become very bullish, and the trade is working for a further advance on the reduced crop estimate. At the interior towns estimates for the week of 105,000 to 105,000 bales are current. At New Orieans tomorrow the receipts are estimated at 10,000 bales. A sharp raily during the afternoon carried prices to 8.15 for January, the highest point touched on this advance. At this point, however, the pressure of large selling orders on long cotton gradually broke the market to the close, which was easy. Local traders have been the heaviest buyers today, and their liquidation causes assier prices after the close, January selling at 8.25. The receipts for the week will hardly equal the early estimates of 310,000 bales, as no steamers have cleared from Branswick. From the tone of the morning, as poor advices are expected from Manchester tomorrow and small sales in Liverpool.

There was no demoralization. It was simply a desire to sell on the part of longs which brought about the weakness. On the break, however, more confidence appeared, and the large offerings were gradually absorbed and around about noon a decidedly better feeling had already set in, which was assisted by reports of unseasonable weather in the Memphis district as well as parts of Texas, and on this prices were worked up fully 10 points from the lowest figures made this morning. At the closing there was again renewed realising, and under this values sold off *6$ points, closing steady at a trific below last night's figures. Receipts this week will be smaller than we have anticipated, and it looks now as if the ports, instead of being 20,800 to 38,000 bales less than last year, will probably be 45,600 to 55,000 bales less, while, as far as can be judged, the interior will also continue on a moderate same. The absence of a short interest is the only source of weakness which is apparent at this writing, and we must be prepared from time to sime to see the setbacks recently witnessed. Otherwise the general conditions are trained to make the impression that the position is a stable one, and prices seem, as they have to us, on a reasonable basis

Features of the Speculative Movement is CHICAGO, November 3—With receipts at the primary points the smallest for three months and exports the largest for the same time wheat today closed strong. The opening was about 16 16 lower, and prices de clined 16 16 more, then rallied 16, receded some and the closing was within %c of the top for the day.

The corn market again took a drop in the early rading similar to that of yesterday. This was due very largely to sensational reports on the failure of Pegram & Bros, of Lincoln, Illinois, and a published statement that Chicago commission houses were heavy losers. This made the trade nervous. The initial statement that Chicago commission houses were heavy losers. This made the trade nervous. The initial rades were at fractional declines, and the price was carried down ic more, then advanced ic, ruled firm and closed with a slight gain.

Oats fluctuated with corn and closed about steady. The feature of the day was the heavy selling of May early by Rouse, who disposed of fully 200,000 bushels, presumably for New York.

The provision market showed strength all day, chiefly on smaller receipts of hogs than expected, higher prices at the yards and good buying by the late clique in ribs and shorts generally. Comparatively small stocks of all kinds of products, excepting mess pork attracted some attention. An impression prevailed manufacturers were covering a portion of their outstanding con tasets, and this strengthened the market to some extent. Receipts of products were comparatively light and shipments quite large, particularly of meats and lard. An advance of is in Liverpool was the factor in lard. There was a strong demand for spot at 60c over the price of seller month.

The leading natures ranges as sellews in Chicago today.

Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter.

By Private Wire to B. W. Martin, Manager.
CHICAGO, November 3.—If the general appearances are correct holders of grain have reason to believe that their worst troubles are over and the chances for higher prices more favorable. Farmers' deliveries appear to have fallen off fully one-third and reports generally concur in the statement that offerings are much lighter. Foreign markets appear to be steadler and clearances today were the largest for some time, aggregating fully 500,000 bushels. Wheat and flour are reduced. Opening prices were generally a shade lower than yesterday's closing and the market was characterized by duliness. It very soon became firm, however, closing steady at about the highest of the day with general appearances in favor of the holders. There was a good demand for car lots of corn and oats and the market was strong, recording an advance of about 1-2 cent for the former. Offerings of hog products were very light and a liberal advance was established all around, owing to the light receipts of hogs, and the price at the yards being 10 cents higher.

THE HOUSE COMMITTEES APPOINTED

The Last of the Elections—And it Was That of the Hon. Charley Hill Touching the Telephone Companies.

Speaker Atkinson announced his commi tees of the Georgia house of representatives yesterday. In making up the list the speaker

There are comparatively few surprises in the list to those who have kept at all posted in the drift of legislative matters since the opening of the present session.

Everybody expected either Judge John I. Hall, of Spalding, or Hon. Warner Hill, of Meriwether, to be chairman of the general judiciary committee. They didn't know which it would be, but the understanding was pretty general that it would be one or the other. It is now pretty well known that Judge Hall asked to be given the chairmanship of the committee of finance, and that Hill, of Meriwether, be given the general judiciary. The two com-mittees are of equal importance and there is little or no difference in the compliments

With monotonous routine the general as-sembly went through with the last of the elections for judges and solicitors of the state yesterday.

It was a long day's business and is was such a business as made the members turn and yawn in their seats many times before it was over. It takes just half an hour by the clock to call the big roll of the house and senate in joint session, and when it is considered that this had to be experienced thirteen times during the morning session with no ex-citing contest, no fun of having competition for the office, it can in a measure be fau-cied how tedious and how tasteless were the

The first circuit taken up by the general assembly was the Cherokee, it having no been completed the day before.

The president announced that it was in order to elect a solicitor general for this circuit, and Mr. Neel, of Bartow, nominated the present incumbent. Solicitor General Fite. The nomination was seconded by so many at once that it was difficult to tell who they were. There being no opposition the roll call proceeded until every vote was recorded for Colonel Fite.

The Southwestern circuit was next drawn and it was in order to elect a judge for the circuit. Mr. Stapleton nominated Judge Fish for re-election which was quickly seconded by Mr. Felton, of Macon county, and others. The roll call again went on without interest or concern and the votes were all recorded for Judge Fish, there being no contest.

Colonel C. B. Hudson, the present solicitor general, was with the same unanimity, chosen to represent the state a second term in that circuit.

tor general, was with the same unanimity, chosen to represent the state a second term in that circuit.

Then came the Atlanta circuit. Mr. King, of Fulton, was on his feet in a jiffy and nominated Judge Marshall J. Clarke for re-election. A half dozen seconds were offered until the president had to declare his determination to enforce the new rule adopted by the house and senate that not more than two seconds to any nomination would be entertained. There was no candidate opposing Judge Clarke and the names answering to roll call went all one way.

didate opposing Judge Clarke and the names answering to roll call went all one way.

Hon. E. W. Martin, of Fulton, nominated Hon. Charley Hill for solicitor general. There had been opposition to Mr. Hill, Hon. Eb T. Williams having been a candidate early in the race. But Mr. Williams having withdrawn from the contest several days ago, Hon. Charley had things all his own way and got every vote that was polled. His nomination was seconded by Thomason, of Morgan, and Morton, of Clarke.

Hon. Henry B. Peeples, present solicitor general of the Southern circuit, was nominated to fill the unexpired term in that circuit by West, of Lowndes. He was elected without opposition, and was also elected to the full term, necessitating another long and tiresome roll call.

How could the Oconee circuit get along without Judge C. C. Smith? Of course, he was elected judge again in that circuit and of course he had no opposition for the place. Hodge, of Pulaski, put him in nomination, making pleasing mention of him as the big hearted, big minded Charley Smith. The Rome circuit was the next in order according to the drawing, and without delay Mr. Corput nominated Judge W. M. Henry. It was seconded by Mr. Bloodworth. There was no other names in nomination and the clerk proceeded to deal out a little more agony with a long winded roll call, Judge Henry getting all the votes. The last election was for officers in the Stone Mountain circuit where Judge Richard H. Clark and Colonel John Candler hold the fort. Both were elected without opposition and then the members all heaved a sigh of gratitude and delight that the last roll call had been called and the last long vote taken.

The Senate.

Two important bills were introduced in the senate yesterday morning before that body went into joint session.

One bill will stir up the telephone companies and the other will exercise the schoolbook publishers.

Mr. Smith, of the thirty-fourth district, proposes to bring telephone companies under the control of the state railroad commission and his bill aims at that. He says their service in different cities in the state. He thinks that telephone corporations should be controlled just as much as telegraph, typess and railroad companies.

Uniform School Books.

Senator Smith, of the fifteenth, introduced a bill empowering the state school board to prescribe the textbooks to be used in the public schools. When prescribed the books are not to be changed for two years. If the bill becomes a law it is to take effect in ninety days from its passage unless that provision is amended.

Mr. Smith says that he has conferred with a number of senators and representatives about the bill and he found them favorable to it.

Under the present law the county school boards prescribe the textbooks and they vary all over the state. Children moving from one county to another have to get new sets of books. In some counties the schoolbook men have influenced the boards to change the books frequently and put the parents to extra expense. By placing the power to prescribe in the hands of the state school board, consisting of the governor, the state school commissioner, the treasurer and the comptroller general, one standard of books would be adopted for the whole state and the publishers could be induced to sell much cheaper, perhaps for one-third less than present prices. Captain Bradwell, the state school commissioner, estimates that a uniform line of books would save the children or their parents $250,000 a year.

Some of the companies now supplying books to Georgia's school children will be likely to fight the measure.

Deaf and Dumb Asylum.

Mr. Corput put in a bill to change the

Mr. Corput put in a bill to change the name of the deaf and dumb asylum to the Georgia School for the Deaf and Dumb.

The purpose of this measure is to get the idea out of the public mind that this is an asylum and to let it be understood that it is an educational institution. This is in line with the action of other states.

Mr. Corput also introduced a bill making a special appropriation of $20,000 to the deaf and dumb asylum. This bill was afterwards withdrawn and will be introduced in the house. Deaf and Dumb Asylum.

Mr. Ramsey Did Not Show Up.

The senate committee on privileges and elections met yesterday afternoon to consider the contest over the senator's seat from the twenty-ninth district. Senator Milt. Reese, the democrat who holds the seat, was present with counsel, ex-Senator Fleming dulignon.

Mr. C. R. Ramsey, who was the nominee of the third party in that district, did not appear, either in person or by counsel. Nobody knew where he was, nor was there any message from him. Chairman Daley opened the papers, which had been prepared in the case, and they proved to be evidence taken at the instance of Mr. Reese, when he thought that he would be the contestant. When he found that on the face of the returns he would be entitled to the seat, he served notice on Mr. Ramsey that he would withdraw his contest.

The occupant of a seat cannot contest his own seat, said Mr. dullignon. Then he stated that he did not see how the committee could take up Mr. Ramsey's case, as that gentleman had not complied with the law, which requires a contestant to give five days' notice to the party in the seat. This Mr. Ramsey has not done. Mr. Reese stated that he has not received any notice of a contest from Mr. Ramsey. All he had heard, said Mr. Reese, was some talk around the lobbies and some references in the newspapers that Mr. Ramsey contemplated making a contest.

The committee heard Mr. dullignon for a few minutes and then all but the committee

The committee heard Mr. duBignon for a few minutes and then all but the committee retired while the committeemen made up their report. What it will be was not learned, but it will certainly not be adverse to the democratic senator. A Recess for Three Days.

A Recess for Three Days.

A very lively little debate came up in the house yesterday just before adjourning for the dinner hour on a resolution introduced by Mr Fleming, of Richmond, the purpose of which is to adjourn the general assembly four days to allow the members to go home and vote.

It was a joint resolution and provided for taking a recess of four days which shall be added to the session after the fifty consecutive days from the opening shall be consumed. The resolution is to adjourn the general assembly if concurred in by the senate from Saturday night till Thursday Morning, allowing all the members to go home and spend Tuesday, election day, at the polls, returning Wednesday to reconvene Thursday morning, with no per diem allowed during the recess.

This brought up the question whether the recently adopted constitutional amendments required a session of fifty consecutive days or whether the legislature could take a recess and add the time lost at the close of the session.

Mr. Fleming made a clear and able speech in defense of the resolution. He said he had held conference with prominent lawyers on the floor of the house and that it was their opinion that this time could be taken from the session provided it be taken as a recess and no per diem be allowed. "We can do nothing if we don't adjourn for the members are going home anyhow, or at least so many of them that we will have no quorum left to transact the business of the assemblyand yet for those four days of idleness we will be drawing our per diem and the days will be irreparably lost from the fifty days allowed.

Mr. Smith, of Gwinnett, Mr. Johnson, of Fulton, Mr. Roddenberry, of Thomas, Mr. Branch, of Columbia, Mr. Hall of Thomas, Mr. Branch, of Columbia, Mr. Hall of Thomas, Mr. Martin, of Fulton and Representative Styles, of Liberty, all took part in the discussion. Section 1. Be it enacted by the general assembly of the state of Georgia that the provisions of section 1 of the above recited act, granting pensions to the widows of confederate soldiers of this state, shall not apply to widows of soldiers, or children of soldiers, or their widows who are worth the amount of the homestead and exemption allowed by the constitution and laws of this

KILLED HURST

Brack Pritchett, Who Murdered Decatur's Marshal Four Years Ago,

LOCATED AT CHATTANOOGA TENN.

A Fiendish Murder, and a Day of Blo Recalled by the Arrest of the Noted Murderer.

Atlantians still remember with a thrill of horror a Fourth of July about four years ago when a drunken mob of negroes terror ized the town of Decatur and precipitated a bloody riot in which death and desperate wounds figured.

Besides the killing of two negroes in the general riot, Marshal Hurst, as courageous a man as ever wore an officer's badge, was shot to death.

It was a day never to be forgotten in Decatur's history. The negroes of De-Kalb and surrounding counties had gathered to participate in a negro celebration. Many negroes went down from Atlanta, and Decatur was crowded with negroes for the

Although the celebration was of a Sunday school character whisky was one of the chief factors in it, and before the afternoon came many of the negroes were drunk. A disturbance was raised under the bush arbor where the celebration was in progress and the town authorities were sent for to stop it. They tried to stop the noise under the arbor, but their efforts at settlement only added fuel to the fire. A general melee was precipitated, and when the officers attempted to arrest the noisy negroes pistols were drawn, but the negroes were finally arrested.

On the way to the calaboose the negroes swore they would not be locked up, and friends of theirs in the crowd ran up to secure their release. It was then that the first blood was shed. In the general shooting that ensued two negroes were killed and two or three wounded. Cicizens of Deca-tur assisted the marshal, and when it looked as if he would prove victor a tall, yellow negro, of powerful build and with a drawn revolver in his hand, rushed up swearing and threatening.

It was Brack Pritchett, a noted despera do, who was more than once a murderer and those who saw him coming, pistol in hand, knew there would be bloodshed. He ran toward Marshal Hurst and raising his revolver fired three times.

The marshal dropped in his tracks, and Pritchett, seeing that he was fatally hurt, ran off and escaped. Marshal Hurst died from his wounds, and the indignation of the citizens of Decatur at the brutal murder rose to the highest pitch. They organized searching parties to capture the murderer, and woods, and swamps, and vacant houses and every place where a fugutive would be likely to hide were searched. But Pritchett exercised his usual shrewdness in covering his tracks after shooting Marshal Hurst, and although frequently hard pressed by his pursuers, al-ways succeeded in evading capture. Once or twice the officers in their search came almost face to face with the murderer, as they afterwards learned.

When it became evident that Pritchett had escaped from DeKalb county the citizens of Decatur made up a reward of $100, which they offered for the capture of the mura ter. To this Governor Gordon added $200, and the stimulus of a three-hun-dred-dollar reward was offered the search-For many months the search went on.

The crime was of such a brutal, fiendish character that the people of Georgia felt that it should be avenged. So it was that officers in every county in Georgia were on the alert watching for the slayer of Marshal Hurst. Even to this day the search has gone on. The murderous deed is still tresh in the public mind, and the feeling that such a crime should not go unpunished is none the less diminished. Yesterday Chief of Police Connolly received a telegram from the sheriff of Hamilton county in which Chattanooga is located. The telegram asks the amount of the reward offered for the murderer, and the reward offered for the murderer, and states that he is located in Unattanooga.

Chief Connolly wired Mr. Johnson, the officer who telegraphed him, last night stating the amount of the reward offered and asking that he communicate with the sheriff of DeKalb county.

After all Brack Pritchett will be returned to DeKalb county, where justice awaits him.

HOLBROOK GIVES A $5,000 BOND, And Was Released from Jail Yesterday

Parke Holbrook, who shot and killed George Waterhouse at Buckhead, in the northern part of the county, and who has been in jail since the third day after the tragedy, when he gave himself up to Deputy Sheriff Green, was released on bond yesterday afternoon.

sheriff Green, was released on bond yesterday afternoon.

The bond was fixed at $5,000, and was readily signed by friends.

Yesterday afternoon Holbrook's attorneys, Messrs. Dorsey, Brewster & Howell, went before Judge Richard H. Clark and asked him to name a bond for young Holbrook. who was locked up. Judge Clark fixed bail at $5,000.

A number of Holbrook's friends were in the sheriff's office ready to sign the bond, and soon after it was made Holbrook left the jail in company with his cousin, Hon. A. L. Holbrook, of the city council.

Holbrook went to his father's home in DeKalb county, where he spent the night. His father is Hon. W. C. Holbrook, one of DeKalb county's members of the last general assembly.

Holbrook is about thirty-two years old, is married and lives with his family on a farm near Roswell Junction in Cobb county.
